

[steamAPI RestartAppIfNecessary.DOWNLOAD.free !NEW!]

Jan 1, 2018 New release available. After long troubleshooting, trying latest apis, getting latest steamclient.dll on my server and on my own PC. I finally cracked this: turns out that my files where downloaded to an unshared folder which means it had no steamworks folder (or something like that) and my app id was set to one from an old game i made a couple months ago that no longer exists. I'm looking for a fix for this but cant find anything. Please help.
Motorola Connect is officially dead. Even though it was kept from the public for a number of months, this sad news is finally confirmed today. Motorola's blog page says that this service will remain available until an unspecified date, and this page also informs that Motorola Connect is not deprecated, but is to be phased out. Motorola Connect was introduced a number of months ago, and it was known as Project Aura. It allowed Motorola smartphone owners to use their new phone as a desktop computer, with 2-way WiFi and even 3G cellular connectivity. The cost of the service was $60/year, which works out to be $10/month. After the launch, there have been a number of posts on the internet, pointing to Motorola Connect being discontinued. So we need to wait and see what Motorola will officially say on this, but for now it is probably time to prepare for such a service to be discontinued, along with support.
